If this cannot be presented, then the corresponding construction withholding tax shall be withheld.
- k) In the case of initial business contact the Contractor shall present a creditors master data sheet based on a template of the Customer, with this bearing the signature and stamp of the Contractor and submitted as original or as fax (fax no.: 03491 682811). This is to be updated promptly by the Contractor, including in the event of changes in the master data - in particular bank details.

4. Delivery dates, delayed delivery

- a) The delivery dates agreed with the Contractor are binding. Depending on the agreed terms of delivery, the arrival of the goods at the location specified by the Customer or the timely provision of the products for collection at the supplying plant of the Contractor shall be definitive for observance of the delivery period.

- b) If the Contractor is delayed with a delivery/service, this shall invoke, for each week of delivery/service delay commenced, a contractual penalty to the amount of 1 % of the contractual price of the delayed products, however to a maximum of 5 % of the contractual price. The right to enforce claims for compensation is not affected. Amongst other costs, the Supplier shall compensate the following: special transport costs (both from the Contractor to the Customer and from the Customer to its customers), additional costs arising from extra shifts, costs of replacement/conversion, additional testing costs. However, a contractual penalty incurred shall be deducted from an enforced claim for compensation.
- c) Early delivery and partial delivery of raw materials shall only be accepted by the Customer with written agreement. Should the Contractor deliver the raw materials earlier than the agreed delivery date, the Customer reserves the right to send the products back at the expense and risk of the Contractor.
- d) If the Contractor realises, irrespective of lit. a) – b), that a delivery date agreed with the Customer or an agreed delivery quantity cannot be met, then he shall inform the Customer of this without delay, stating the reasons, the provisional duration of the delay and its effects, with the measures suitable to avert these.

- b) The Supplier is obliged to enclose the accompanying delivery notes to the deliveries. All contents, in particular the order number of the Customer and the supplier number, are to be stated in the delivery notes. If these prerequisites fail to be met, the Customer shall not be responsible for the resultant delay in processing.

7. Quality and documentation

- a) The Supplier shall observe the recognised rules of technology and the respectively-applicable safety regulations. To the extent that the Supplier has received drawings, samples or other specifications or documents from the Customer, he shall observe these with regard to the design and characteristics of the delivery item.  - The Contractor is aware that the products cannot be used if the requirements of REACH are not fulfilled in a complete and orderly manner.

- The Contractor shall maintain, respectively develop, a quality management system. The Supplier shall provide the Customer with a copy of the respectively current certificate and send the Customer a new certificate following the lapsing of the validity date of the certificate, without being requested to do so. Should the certificate no longer be recognised, the Customer shall be informed of this without delay.
 - The Supplier shall enclose data sheets, material specifications and product descriptions to the initial sampling.
 - Independently of successful sampling, the Contractor shall monitor the quality of the delivery items continuously. In addition, the contractual partners shall inform one another about opportunities for further quality improvement.
 - If the type and scope of the testing and the test material and methods are not specifically agreed between the Contractor and the Customer, then the Customer shall be prepared, at the request of the Contractor, to discuss the testing with the Contractor, in the scope of their knowledge, experience and possibilities, to identify the respectively required level of testing technology.
- c) Where authorities and customers of the Customer request, for the subsequent inspection of specific requirements, insight into the production process and testing documents of the Customer, the Contractor declares himself willing to grant them the same rights in his company and to provide all reasonable assistance in this, to the extent that the duty of confidentiality of the Contractor towards third parties is not infringed as a consequence. The Contractor shall commit upstream suppliers to the same extent, where legally permissible.
- d) Moreover, the Customer may undertake reasonable inspections and quality audits at the facilities where the Supplier produces the products, at any time, with reasonable prior notice, and during the normal business hours, at the intervals that the Customer considers necessary.
- e) The Customer has the right to terminate the respective contract via written notification to the Contractor, where the Contractor fails to maintain the agreed quality standards.

9. Packaging

The Contractor is to observe the requirements of the respectively valid packaging regulations.

10. Construction, assembly and services

- a) The Contractor is obliged to take out adequate third-party insurance cover and furnish proof of this. In the event of insufficient insurance cover the Customer shall be entitled to terminate the contract without notice. For orders above a value of 0.5 m euros the Customer reserves the right to himself take out insurance cover for construction and assembly. Should the Customer fail to take out construction and assembly insurance cover, the Contractor shall prove to the Customer that he has taken out sufficient assembly insurance cover. The liability of the Contractor is not affected by this. Generally, the Contractor is obliged to take out suitable insurance cover for property that he has brought in, as well as employees and subcontractors. The Customer assumes no responsibility or obligation for these. Equipment and materials delivered are generally to be insured by the Contractor against transport damage until handover of complete performance to the Customer.
- b) The Contractor commits himself to carry out the performance assigned to him in accordance with the valid statutory regulations, official requirements and the recognised rules of technology at the time point of realisation. The Contractor assures that he shall not undertake any deductions from the employees other than the statutory deductions. Where there is a suspicion of failure to observe the MiLoG the Customer is entitled to request current verification (for example records of hours worked, anonymised payroll accounts for the employees assigned) from the Contractor. The terms of the Federal Data Protection Act are to be observed in full. If data is provided in anonymised form, the Contractor shall ensure that the data of the employees assigned by the Contractor with the fulfilment of this contract, and that the data fully and accurately reflects the actual circumstances in the respective months. The Customer assures that he shall use the anonymised data solely for the purpose of monitoring whether the Contractor has fulfilled his payment obligations in an orderly manner. In the event of the Contractor assigning subcontractors for the fulfilment of his performance, he shall commit these subcontractors in accordance with the aforementioned terms and in particular ensure that the verification of the subcontractor as per MiLoG § 3 is communicated to the Customer without delay, where the Customer is obliged to furnish this to courts or other official bodies. In the event of the Customer being pursued by employees of the Contractor or subcontractors for non-payment of the statutory minimum wage, the Contractor shall release the Customer from the claims of the employees in full at first request. In the event of culpable infringement of the Contractor of his duties from the aforementioned duty to inform, the Customer reserves the right to terminate for cause.
- f) The Contractor guarantees that his workers assigned to the Customer satisfy the EU directives and official requirements for working in the Federal Republic of Germany, i.e. that they are in possession of a valid work and residency permit. This is to be verified on request. Foreign workers are required to have basic German language skills.
- g) The involvement of subcontractors is to be communicated to the Customer in writing prior to the assignment of the subcontractor. The Customer reserves the right to object to the assignment. When awarding tasks to subcontractors the Contractor must also commit these to the existing contractual conditions and confirm this in writing on request.

- b) The Customer shall inspect the products supplied by the Contractor on receipt for correspondence with goods ordered and delivered, for any quantity deviations as well as visible damage, to the extent that this is feasible in an orderly transaction. Defects identified in this inspection shall be communicated to the Contractor by the Customer without delay. The Contractor otherwise waives the requirement for an in-depth incoming goods inspection at the Customer. Other defects that are only identified by the Customer during processing or use of the delivered goods for their intended purpose shall be communicated to the Contractor by the Customer without delay following identification of the defects. In this respect the Contractor waives the objection of delayed notification of defects.
- c) In the event of defective delivery the Contractor shall initially be granted opportunity for supplementary performance, i.e. the Customer may choose either rectification of defects or delivery of a new item (replacement parts). In both cases the Supplier shall bear all costs incurred in this, such as transport, travel, labour and material costs. The same applies for any costs of removal and installation. In the case of subsequent delivery the Contractor shall take back the defective products at his own expense.
- d) If supplementary performance fails, if it cannot be reasonably expected of the Customer or if it is not commenced promptly by the Contractor, then the Customer may withdraw from the contract without further notice and return the products at the expense and risk of the Contractor. In these and other urgent cases, in particular for the avoidance of acute damage or greater damage, if it is no longer possible to inform the Contractor of defects and grant him a period of respite for rectification, even where this is short, the Customer may undertake rectification of defects himself at the expense of the Contractor, or have this undertaken by a third party.
- e) Unless otherwise regulated in an individual order or subsequently, claims for material defect lapse 24 months from the time point of delivery of the goods to the Customer. In the case of delivery of replacement parts (cf. lit. c) the limitation period begins anew with their delivery to the Customer.
- f) Further claims, in particular for compensation or guarantees of the Contractor, are not affected.

12. Liability/guarantee

- a) The Contractor is liable for all loss caused by him and his agents in accordance with the applicable statutory terms.
 - b) The Customer assumes no liability for the loss of or damage to the property of the Contractor and his subcontractors.
 - c) The Contractor guarantees that his performance shall have the contractually assured characteristics at the time of acceptance, comply with the general and recognised rules of technology and not feature defects that remove or reduce the value or suitability for agreed use, and that the applicable standards binding upon the contractual object have been observed.
 - d) The Contractor guarantees that the materials and equipment supplied for fulfilment of the contract satisfy the required specifications of the Customer.
 - e) The Contractor is obliged to rectify defects that occur due to performance not in accordance with the contract in a professional manner, at his own expense. This shall occur, following written request by the Customer, within a reasonable period.
 - f) If the defects cannot be rectified via improvement or if the Customer rejects rectification, the Customer shall be entitled to assign another supplier with provision of the performance. The resultant additional costs shall be borne by the Contractor.
 - g) Guarantee periods: The terms of the BGB/ VOB/B - German Construction Contract Procedures - apply.

13. Property rights

- a) The Supplier shall ensure that the Customer or customers of the Customer do not, in the course of procuring, owning, offering, using, distributing or selling the products, infringe intellectual property rights of third parties, in particular trademark, corporate, name, patent, utility, design, get-up or copyright rights of third parties (including corresponding property right registrations) ("property rights"). If the Supplier culpably infringes this duty, then he shall release the Customer and his customers, on first request of the Customer, from any claims of third parties from such actual or alleged breach of property rights and shall bear all costs and expenses that are incurred by the Customer in this respect, in particular prosecution and defence costs on the one hand and costs arising from the observance of a possible duty to refrain on the other.
- b) Lit. a) shall not be applied where the delivery item has been produced according to drawings, models or other detailed specifications of the Customer and that the Contractor was neither aware nor should have been aware that property rights of third parties were infringed as a consequence.
- c) The parties are obliged to inform one another without delay of infringement risks that they become aware of and alleged cases of infringement, and shall act together to counter these as far as may be reasonably expected.
- d) The limitation period is 3 years from conclusion of the corresponding contract.

14. Retention of title

- a) Ownership is transferred to the Customer with complete payment of the purchase price for the products. Any extended or expanded retention of title of the Contractor to the products supplied is excluded.
- b) All parts, raw materials, tools, materials or other devices or objects made available by the Customer remain the sole property of the Customer ("Customer property"). All rights to drafts, samples, drawings, models or other information and documents of the Customer ("Customer documents") also remain with the Customer. The Supplier expressly agrees that Customer property or Customer documents shall not be used for the production or design of products for third party customers without the prior, written authorisation of the Customer.
- c) If the Supplier is in possession of Customer property and Customer documents, he shall store these separately from all property of other persons and clearly label Customer property and Customer documents as the property of the Customer. Customer property and Customer documents shall not be removed from the premises of the Contractor without the prior, written authorisation of the Customer, with the exception of for the purpose of contractual fulfilment.

d) If the goods provided by the Customer are mixed or combined inseparably with other items that are not the property of the Customer, the Customer shall acquire co-ownership of the new product in proportion to the value of its reserved goods (purchase price plus value-added tax) to the other blended or mixed objects at the time of combining or blending.

15. Non-disclosure

a) The Supplier commits himself to treat all confidential information that he receives directly or indirectly from the other respective contractual partner with confidentiality. Orders and all associated commercial and technical details are also to be treated as confidential information. In particular, all illustrations, drawings, calculations, quality guidelines, samples and similar objects are to be treated with confidentiality. The copying and forwarding of confidential information is only permissible in the scope of operational requirements. Third parties may only receive insight with prior, written authorisation of the Customer.

b) The above commitments do not apply to such confidential information of which the Supplier can prove that it

- (i) was already generally accessible at the time of communication or became common knowledge afterwards without his culpability;
- (ii) was already in his possession at the time of communication;
- (iii) was made accessible to him via third parties without the obligation to observe secrecy and refrain from using, whereby a prerequisite is that this third party did not obtain the information directly or indirectly from the Contractor;
- (iiii) is to be communicated to authorities due to statutory requirements.

c) The Supplier commits himself to commit subcontractors to observe confidentiality to the same extent. The Supplier may use the confidential information provided to him by the Customer exclusively for its intended purpose.

d) The duty to observe confidentiality extends for a period of 3 years beyond the ending of the supply relationship. The Supplier commits himself, following the ending of the supply relationship, to return all confidential information received, where this is physical or on electronic storage media, to the Customer. The fulfilment of obligations from the last two clauses is to be confirmed in writing to the Customer by the Supplier, at the request of the Customer.

16. Supply of spare parts

The Supplier commits himself to supply spare parts for the foreseen lifetime of the products. In good time prior to the ending of this period the Supplier shall offer the Customer the option of a final order for long-term requirements.

17. Cancellation/revocation of orders/contracts

a) If one contractual partner ceases payments without justification or if an application is made for the opening of insolvency proceedings concerning his assets, then the other partner is entitled to withdraw from the contract due to the unfulfilled parts of the contract.

b) Each party has the right to terminate a contract at any time without notice for cause. Cause exists in particular in the following cases:

- (i) The opening of insolvency proceedings concerning the assets of one party or the rejection of this due to lack of asset values or liquidation of one of the parties;
- (ii) Breach of key contractual obligations; in the event of a breach that can be rectified, but only after the blameless party has submitted a written request to the other party to rectify the breach, warned it of the impending termination for cause and granted a reasonable period of respite of at least four weeks, which has passed fruitlessly;

c) In the event of cancellation or other termination of a contract the Supplier shall return Customer property and Customer documents (cf. figure 13 b) as well as all other items made available by the Customer, including all drawings and other documents, devices and tools.

18. Other terms

a) Should one of the above terms prove invalid or incapable of being implemented, or become so, this shall not affect the validity of the remainder of the terms. The term that is void or incapable of being implemented shall be agreed to be replaced by such a term that, within the scope of legal possibility, approaches the original purpose intended by the contractual partners with the original term that was invalid or incapable of implementation as closely as possible. The same applies for any loopholes in the contract.

b) The Supplier may not assign or transfer, partially or wholly, any order or the contract without the prior, written authorisation of the Customer.

c) The Supplier may not employ one or more subcontractors with the fulfilment of an order or part of an order without the prior, written authorisation of the Customer.
